You are invited to the Conference and AGM of the African Association of Political Science on: Rethinking Politics in Africa.

The Conference relaunches the African Association of Political Science established in 1974, the age of political ferment and epistemic uprising. AAPS was founded amid the questioning of the postcolonial neocolonial arrangements in Africa, the calls for reimagining the world order along the lines of a New International Economic Order. It is being relaunched in the context of the crisis of the political, leading to growing calls for reimagining the political and the decolonisation of knowledge, being and power. The conference will reflect on what it means to unthink in order to rethink politics across a range of subjects including governance, the state and the non-state; political economy; migration; the renewed pursuit of peace and justice; decolonization of political thought, methodology and pedagogy; rethinking African agency in the world and so forth.
